

Electro Colloidal Silver for Candida & Yeast Infections

Yeast and mould infections are among the most difficult to treat of human ailments. Some of them are also among the most debilitating, such as candida yeast. Candida yeast will readily grow in any moist area of the body, such as the mouth ("thrush"), groin ("jock itch"), vagina ("yeast infection"), and intestines.

Candida yeast is found naturally in the body, but is normally kept under control by beneficial bacteria, such as acidophilus. But candida yeast often gets out of control following the use of antibiotics. The antibiotic kills off the beneficial acidophilus and aerobic bacteria but does not affect the yeast. Without the friendly organisms such as the multiple strains of acidophilus to control it, candida grows fast. The excess sugar of diabetes will also provide food for yeast, causing it to proliferate. Diabetics are therefore especially prone to this type of problem.

The intestines form perfect breeding grounds for candida. If the condition becomes bad enough, eventually the candida irritate an area of the intestine so much that their toxins penetrate the intestinal wall into the blood stream, where they can break down the immune system. Soon the candida infection itself passes through the intestinal wall and the white blood cells are consumed in their struggle to control the infection, further destroying the immune system. Thus, candida is a common contributor to many diseases and conditions, such as AIDS, cancer, chronic fatigue syndrome, colds, flu etc. Almost all disease and health problems are greatly aggravated by candida.

Normally the body can handle minor yeast infections. However, when the yeast reaches the infectious stage wherein it is poisoning the blood and the immune system grows weak, such infections as athlete's foot, vaginal yeast infections, and fungus infections under the nails cannot be fought off.

The most effective tools against yeast infections of all kinds are probiotics like lactobacillus and acidophilus (plain yoghurt), Electro Colloidal Silver and colon irrigation. Combined, they can rid the body of yeast infections about as fast as the body can dispose of the toxins from dead cultures. However, disposing of these toxins can be a real problem, for two reasons. First of all, if the intestinal infection is killed off too suddenly, it is possible for the intestines to become blocked. Obviously this can be serious and sometimes requires professional treatment to clear the bowels. Second, the body tends to dispose of toxins from the blood through the skin, which causes an itchy rash when the process is too fast. Toxins from dead spores can also strain the liver and kidneys.

Therefore, it is wise to take as much acidophilus as is convenient, but to build up the use of ECS gradually, starting with 100 ml per day and building up to 300 ml – 500 ml per day until a breaking out appears or the conditions are relieved. At the same time, it is important to drink at least two litres of pure water daily to help the body flush out the toxins.

Electro Colloidal Silver provides a three-fold attack on the problems of candida. First, it disables anaerobic bacteria and virus wherever it comes in contact with them. Therefore, it rapidly strengthens the immune system against all types of disease and infections, while treating the candida. Thus much of the problems of candida are treated immediately, before the candida can be cleaned out of the system. Second, ECS is unusually effective in eliminating the candida yeast infection itself. And third, it has a strange and dynamic way of healing injured and damaged tissues fast. Since yeast infections of all kinds usually attack and consume the living tissue, a healing process is badly needed, and ECS has a very unique way of healing these tissues fast.

Users continually report that ECS will cure athlete's foot, vaginal yeast infections, as well as candida infections of the skin very quickly and then heal the damaged tissues. However, these are often signs of an inner infection. Until the yeast infection within the body is cured, external infections keep on returning. That is no reason not to treat these conditions. But if they return, it is time to look to the source of the problems as being inward. One can, of course, find explanations for the sources of the reinfection. However, a healthy body seldom succumbs to these infections. Electro Colloidal Silver used internally and locally is the most effective treatment available today for all of these conditions.

(Refer to additional information: Detoxification & Herxheimer's Effect)

RECOMMENDED TREATMENT

1. Elimination of Candida Overgrowth (electro colloidal silver, msm, and diet)
2. Correction of Hypoglycemia (diet, electro colloidal silver, and supplements)
3. Detoxification (drink lots of distilled water, diet, herbs, and exercise)
4. Restoration of Normal Bowel Flora (probiotics)
5. Normalization of Digestion (diet, electro colloidal silver, and herbs)
6. Maintenance (diet, electro colloidal silver, msm, herbs, and exercise - establish a healthy lifestyle)